THE JERUSALEM POST

EDITORIAL

Mr. Hammarskjold's hint that failure in Egypt does not augur well for the urgent and difficult task that lies ahead of him in advising the South African Government on the prevention of racial conflict.

The frustrating end of the voyages of the Inge Toft and Astypalea, the two vessels which had finally to be withdrawn from the Suez Canal because they were not permitted passage with Israel-made — though not owned — cargoes, had long been foreseen in this country; nevertheless, it would have been unpardonable not to make a serious attempt to follow the tortuous method prescribed by the U.N. Secretary for getting Israel goods through the Canal. Mr. Hammarskjold appears to have been hopeful until the end that his "quiet diplomacy" would work, and that Nasser would permit ships from Israel to pass as long as the word "Israel" did not figure in their papers and nothing was said about the whole matter.

Or possibly he was not hopeful, and wished merely to postpone the day when the U.N. would have to admit that its authority was being flouted by Egypt. He might face even this with equanimity, for it is not the first conflict which the U.N. has had to abandon unsolved, were it not for uneasiness lest Israel should once more see itself forced into action of some kind. Israel cannot afford to accept the Suez blockade or the rest of the boycott measures permanently, to the extent to which they cannot be countered successfully in the framework of systematic cooperation with other states.

It is time to observe, however, that Nasser is likely to exploit the relative success of the boycott — relative to his failures in the military field — in his relations with other countries. Aggression is not a method that would appeal to Mr. Nehru, but there have been some ugly echoes out of Panama. There, the U.A.R. representative has apparently been advising the Cuban representative on the benefits to be reaped from the U.S. by adroit cooperation with the Soviet bloc, and some Cuban sugar is already going to Poland. The parallel is even closer as regards the conflict within the Panama Canal where conflicts over sovereignty have gradually been developing. The U.S. cannot at present be forced out of this zone as the British were forced out of the Suez zone, but Nasser's success in this respect is liable to put an edge to the Panamanian protests and demands. What is involved really is not the question of national sovereignty. There are no longer any grounds on which this can be withheld from any nation that seeks it, and nation after nation is acquiring it. What is needed the more urgently is a guarantee that other nations' rights will continue to be protected in a country after independence has been attained. It is the greater pity that the U.N. has been throwing away in Suez the last shreds of confidence that anyone might have nursed that this body might some day successfully exercise just this function.

FIRST U.N.O.M. HEAD BACK ON VISIT

The first Director of U.N.O.M., Mr. Bruce McDaniel, arrived in Haifa aboard the s.s. Israel on Friday with his wife for a month's visit. Mr. McDaniel served in Israel from 1951 to 1954.

Makarios Walks Out Of New Cyprus Talks

NICOSIA (Reuter). — New talks between Mr. Julian Amery, the British Colonial Under-Secretary, and Greek and Turkish Cypriot leaders following a vitriolic speech by Archbishop Makarios, Greek Cypriot President-elect, broke up yesterday after 45 minutes.

Archbishop Makarios left Government House without shaking hands with either Mr. Amery or Sir Hugh Foot, Governor of Cyprus.

Dr. Fazil Kutchuk, the Turkish Cypriot leader, Mr. Amery and Sir Hugh then continued discussions without the Archbishop.

The Archbishop told cheering Cypriots on Friday that if the current negotiations with the British did not end in agreement and the impression continued, "We ourselves will proclaim the Cyprus Republic."

In Athens a Greek Government spokesman, commenting on the Archbishop's declaration, said: "The Greek Government will not endorse this unilateral proclamation of a republic. In any case, this would be impossible, as implementation of the (Cyprus) agreements — even if it were feasible without the collaboration of the British Government — could not take place without the collaboration of the Turkish Government and that of the Turkish minority in Cyprus."

Civil Disobedience

He added it would also be necessary "to invite the people to undertake civil disobedience against the British Government."

He was addressing huge crowds celebrating the fifth birthday of Eoka.

First official reaction was according to informed sources, that the Archbishop's words are being considered "as likely to create a serious situation."

Dr. Kutchuk said in a press statement: "In view of the Archbishop's speech, we call on the guaranteeing powers (Britain, Greece and Turkey) to take all steps to prevent the abrogation of the Zurich and London agreements."

Dr. Kutchuk said the Archbishop had given an "ultimatum" threatening a situation of civil disobedience which could "plunge the Island into conspiracy, chaos, unrest and probably civil war."

He called for Greek and Turkish troops on the island "without delay" as the "only way of giving the people an immediate guarantee." "Our fears will not come true."

Breakdown Forecast

Political quarters have forecast that a breakdown may be inevitable, unless either side makes big last-minute concessions — particularly on the size of British bases in the proposed new Republic.

Britain wants more than 100 square miles for her bases, but the Cypriots want her to accept less. Questions of British financial aid, and civil administration at the bases are also unsettled.

Independence was originally to have been proclaimed on February 19 last, but has now been indefinitely postponed. Referring to this in his speech Friday, the Archbishop asked, "When will this indefiniteness end?"

He recalled that the Zurich and London agreements for setting up a republic were signed more than a year ago. "We do not know what the British think," he added. "They are ministers, however, if they think that by endless discussions and continued discontents and sentiments they will succeed in enforcing their terms."

Jordan Moves Equipment For Yarmuk Diversion

TIBERIAS. — The Jordanians have brought up eight large compressors and heavy earth-moving equipment, including bulldozers, to the Yarmuk River, apparently for the purpose of blasting a 1,200-metre channel to divert the stream.

They also brought up more workers and erected a shed for the equipment.

Observers believe that the Jordanians intend by speeding up the work on this project to get a channel has been dug from Wadi el Hammam (seven km. south of the Bnot Yaakov Bridge) to the Sharon Valley, as part of the Yarmuk diversion scheme.

SUNSPOTS DISRUPT NEWS CABLES

Short-wave communications between Israel and the outside world have been disrupted since early Friday morning due to intense solar activity — magnetic storms causing a magnetic storm in many parts of the globe.

As a result, the flow of news received by press agencies in Israel via the teleprinter has been reduced to an almost unprecedented extent, with over 90 per cent of the incoming matter being rendered null by misunderstanding. Improved last night.

VANDALS DAUB NEW SYNAGOGUE IN U.S.

UTICA, New York (Reuter). — Obscene anti-Jewish slogans and swastikas were painted on walls of a newly completed synagogue here on Saturday. Police said the markings — in red and grey cement paint — appeared to be the work of adults.

Damage to the synagogue, Temple Emanu-El, being built at a cost of $300,000, was estimated at about $3,000.

Biggest of the daubings was a 10-foot high swastika painted over the Menorah on the front of the building.

The name of Israel's Prime Minister, Mr. David Ben-Gurion, was also daubed on one of the walls.

SHARAV TODAY

A sharav is predicted for the early part of today. Later, temperatures will fall and the humidity will rise. The maximum temperatures in Jerusalem today will be 38, as compared to 34 yesterday; in Tel Aviv, 33 (30); in Beersheba, 35 (30); in Haifa, 30 (31), and in Eilat, 36 (31).

U.N. Chief to Tackle S. Africa Problem on Council's Decision

UNITED NATIONS.—Mr. Dag Hammarskjold on Saturday turned his attention to the racial troubles in South Africa, in compliance with a Security Council resolution calling on the Union Government to abandon apartheid and asking the Secretary-General to make arrangements with South Africa to uphold the principles and purposes of the U.N. Charter.

The resolution was passed on Friday night by nine votes — including that of the U.S. — to seven, with Britain and France abstaining.

The Afro-Asian nations, who sponsored the resolution, did not seek any specific new steps by the Secretary-General, but they wanted Mr. Hammarskjold to act. They were delighted at the passage of the resolution, however, because, in getting that Britain, as one of the five permanent members of the Security Council, might exercise her power of veto.

An official statement issued by the U.N. Secretariat yesterday said: Mr. Ralph Bunche, the Under-Secretary in charge of Trusteeship affairs, paid a call on the Secretary-General today at the Secretary-General's request. There was no question of any consultations on the basis of the resolution passed by the Security Council.

Officials here thought it likely Mr. Hammarskjold might have consulted not Mr. Bunche on a possible visit to South Africa.

Mr. Henry Cabot Lodge of the U.S. said the resolution "does not contain the usual invective, and seems to build a bridge and not a wall."

French Misgivings

The French delegate said his country maintained its political misgivings and reservations as to the legitimacy of the claim that the "explosive events" in South Africa constituted a threat to peace and security.

On Thursday, Sir Pierson Dixon, of Britain, had urged the Council not to take any action which would exacerbate the situation in South Africa and "irritate rather than cure a disease the seriousness and delicacy of which is plain for all to see."

Last November, Britain and France both voted against a General Assembly resolution censuring "racial policies" over South Africa's racial policies.

Astypalea to Discharge Cargo On Monday and Return to Greece

PORT SAID (Reuter). — Mr. Spyros Kapetanis, master of the 347-ton Greek freighter Astypalea, detained here since last December, said yesterday he had informed customs officials that he had received instructions from the owners to start unloading her cargo of [illegible] cement. The ship would then return to Greece.

He added that unloading was expected to start on Monday. He had called for leaders for the work.

The ship carries a cargo of 400 tons of Israel cement purchased by a company in Amman. The vessel was chartered by the purchasers of the cargo.

Our Diplomatic Correspondent writes:

The decision to unload the Astypalea and sail the vessel back to her home port of Piraeus when her charter expires in a few days' time represents a defeat for the policy of "quiet diplomacy" advocated by Mr. Dag Hammarskjold.

Mr. Golda Meir told the Knesset on December 31, shortly after the ship was detained at the entry to the Suez Canal: "All those who displayed such endless patience with the Egyptian dictator and placed almost boundless confidence in him must realize by now what he has betrayed them."

The Astypalea was denied passage to Israel by Egypt after the Israel Government had been informed by the Egyptians that it had requested that he had requested permission for a ship to pass through the Canal provided that, at the time of transit through the Canal, the cargoes were already the legal property of the purchasers — i.e. were dispatched f.o.b.

This condition was adhered to in the case of the Astypalea, although with considerable misgiving, and only as a result of the assurances received from Mr. Hammarskjold. Friendly powers also recommended that this method be given a trial.

Despite repeating U.N. representations to Cairo during the past three months, Nasser has bluntly repudiated his undertaking in what amounts to a personal affront to Mr. Hammarskjold as well as to the world organization.

It remains to be seen whether the U.N. will do something, smarting in Cairo now from the policy of "quiet diplomacy" has proved an obvious failure.

Haim Salomon Dead at 80

Haim Salomon, former Vice-Mayor and Chairman of the Jewish Community Council of Jerusalem, one of the pioneers of the country's pharmaceutical industry, died yesterday afternoon at his home in Jerusalem after a long illness. He would have been 81 in August.

He was one of the founders of the Bukharin Quarter, the Yemenite Synagogue, the new Bikur Holim Hospital and the Talmudical School in Jerusalem.

The funeral procession will leave the home of the deceased at 10 Rehov Rambam for the Sanhedria Cemetery at 1 p.m. today.

Salomon is survived by his wife, Shoshana, and his four children — Shulamit, of the Atomic Chemical Laboratories at Petah Tikva; Ya'acov, the well-known lawyer; Avraham, Shalom, Israel's Consul-General at the Israel Embassy in Washington; and Naomi, Personal Assistant to the Attorney-General.

Haim Salomon was born in Jerusalem to Yoel Moshe Salomon, one of the founders of the country's first colony, Petah Tikva, and the Rishlat Shivah Quarter in Jerusalem. When the family returned to Jerusalem after living in Teberiya during the founding days of Petah (Continued on Page 2, Col. 5)

African Marchers Ordered Back

CAPETOWN (Reuter). — Several thousand Africans who had started to march on Capetown were yesterday ordered and ordered back to their township of Kraiga.

The Africans, who had begun the march about 30 miles outside Capetown — in order to draw attention to their grievances — were told by the police that no further progression by the thousand African marchers would be allowed near the city.

Several thousand Africans were expected to have gone on strike yesterday in the Capetown area in support of the marchers.

The starting point of Wednesday's march on Capetown by Mixed Africans.

Twenty of the 28 ships in Capetown harbour were able to load or unload cargo yesterday, and there were signs that the harbour would return to normal working by Monday.

More Call-Ups

On Friday night, the Governor-General, Mr. Charles Swart, signed a proclamation providing for the mobilization of all territorial and civilian commando units if necessary and extended the state of emergency from 40 to 111 of the magisterial districts.

The action followed a day marked by further clashes. Three Africans were killed when police fired on a column marching on Durban from the township of Cato Manor. Police, supported by armed naval ratings, baton-charged another column of marchers.

At Nyanga, near Capetown, an African baby was killed and his mother injured when defense forces fired on the car in which they were travelling after it had been ordered to stop.

Last November, Britain and France both voted against a General Assembly resolution censuring "racial policies" over South Africa's racial policies.

Lawsuits Induce Syria To 'Cooperate' with Israel

TIBERIAS. — Lawsuits were responsible recently for inducing the Syrians to cooperate to some extent, with Israel for the first time since the signing of the Armistice Agreement 11 years ago.

An arrangement was worked out, under the auspices of U.N. observers, whereby Israel plants could spray the locust-infested fields up to the border without Syrian interference, while at the same time a Syrian team of 30 men sprayed their side of the frontier from the ground.

The operation lasted from March 17 to 20 under the close supervision of the U.N. officers, who manned their observation posts from 8.30 a.m. until dusk.

The Syrians would not agree, however, to Israel planes spraying an area further north, near Kibbutz Shamir, where only small swarms of locusts had settled.

El Al Plane Makes Emergency Landing

LONDON (Reuter). — An El Al Britannia bound for Rome and Lydda turned back here yesterday and made an emergency landing after the pilot found the under-carriage was not properly retracted.

The plane later took off again.

Arms Cut World's Most Urgent Problem—Say K and de Gaulle

General to Visit USSR

PARIS (Reuter).—Mr. Nikita Khrushchev and President de Gaulle said in a joint communique at end of their talks that "disarmament is the most important and most urgent problem of our age."

The two leaders agreed "that all international questions now awaiting must be resolved not by the use of force but by peaceful means, by negotiations."

The communique said the two countries realized that the development of their relations in friendship and collaboration would help to secure international relaxation and to consolidate peace in Europe and in the world."

Mr. Khrushchev yesterday revealed that Gen. de Gaulle had accepted an invitation to visit the Soviet Union. "We shall give him a welcome worthy of him," he said. The date of the visit would be announced later.

Must "Roll Up Sleeves"

In a television broadcast yesterday evening he said: "We all believe as you do in close personal contacts and cooperation between countries.

"The blood shed by us in the war binds us, but that is not enough. We must roll up our sleeves and get to work constructively.

"In order to live in peace we must know each other better."

Mr. Khrushchev said he was pleased with his talks with President de Gaulle, "but even in such close conversations you cannot solve all the serious problems. However, that is not an excuse for sitting with folded hands and doing nothing."

He said his 11 days in France was a short time in which to get to know a country and its people but he had met "simple citizens, leaders, businessmen, intellectuals and we have tried to learn as much as possible and have succeeded to a great extent."

"Usually when you leave a place or town, they ask how you liked it. On leaving I should like to add that I take much the same with me from each of the people."

Earlier yesterday Mr. Khrushchev said he had met with great warmth and he felt that close contacts would be made. "We would like to see more of you and that France will come to see us."

The Soviet Prime Minister was answering a reporter who asked at a press conference, attended by about 1,500 journalists, what he thought of the second French atomic explosion.

He replied that he regretted such tests and thought the conclusion of a test ban agreement would make it more difficult for the French Government to carry them out.

Asked about the Soviet-American disarmament proposals on a short-term basis, Mr. Khrushchev said he had no details of it, but he would welcome it if it were on the equipment side. Such a step would be an encouragement of the Soviet proposals.

Relaxed, Affable

Reporters present found Mr. Khrushchev relaxed and affable. Apart from an occasional smile he gave no sign of emotion.

After praising the creative genius of the French people and their capacity for hard work, Mr. Khrushchev said: "My comrades and I have been really touched by the unforgettable warmth with which we were greeted everywhere."

Asked if he had discussed Algeria with General de Gaulle, the Soviet Premier replied, "We answered many questions and put forward

New U.S. 'Moon' Sends Photos

WASHINGTON (AFP).—The U.S. satellite successfully launched from Cape Canaveral on Friday has sent back its first photographs, it was announced here yesterday.

The four photographs arrived from "Tyro-1," equipped with two television cameras, are the first ever transmitted by an American satellite, and it was considered impossible that any Soviet satellite had taken photographs of this type.

They show the estuary of the St. Lawrence River in Canada, taken through the clouds, and were immediately taken to President Eisenhower, who expressed great pleasure at the success of the experiment.

High-Speed Cameras

The two television cameras, each of which takes 32 pictures at 30-second intervals, are operated by electronic "orders." The pictures are then transmitted immediately or stored on magnetic tape.

Earlier NASA officials told the press that "Tyro-1" will go around the earth in an orbit which will take it over the northern part of the U.S.S.R. and Communist China.

They said, however, that this was not an "observation satellite" since its cameras are not powerful enough for this purpose.

U.S. Aid Extended To Syrian Region

CAIRO (Reuter). — Mr. Frederick Reinhardt, U.S. Ambassador to the U.A.R. and the Under-Secretary for Foreign Affairs, Abdul Hamid Ghaleb, yesterday signed an agreement extending U.S. technical and economic development to the Syrian region for the first time.

Since 1955 the Egyptian region has received U.S. aid amounting to $40m.

'NEVER RESERVED' U-2 REQUEST

WASHINGTON (Reuter). — Mr. Eisenhower said at his press conference here yesterday that he had "never received any request from the Soviet Union for a U-2 flight over its territory."

A reporter had asked the President, Mr. Eisenhower, how he would react if Mr. Khrushchev requested "a few more overflights" over Soviet territory. "Then in reply to a supplementary question he said if he would receive such a request he would answer it.

(The Soviet Ambassador to Israel, Mr. Mikhail Benkov, returned here from Moscow on March 31, was reported to have taken with him a request from Mr. Ben-Gurion for a meeting with Mr. Khrushchev.)

(Kol Yisrael's Paris correspondent reported last night there was official indication had been found to Mr. Ben-Gurion to visit France. No date for the visit was announced.)

Mikoyan Due In Baghdad Friday

BAGHDAD (Reuter). — Baghdad Radio announced Friday night that Mr. Anastas Mikoyan, a First Deputy Prime Minister of the Soviet Union, will arrive here next Friday for the opening of the first Soviet industrial exhibition on April 12.

The Radio said Mr. Mikoyan, who will be the guest of the Government, will have an opportunity to exchange views with General Abdul Karim Kassem, the Prime Minister, during his stay here.

President Sukarno of Indonesia arrived here yesterday on a three-day state visit.

Ghana Recalls Envoy in Paris After 2nd French Atomic Test

ACCRA (Reuter).—Ghana told France yesterday it had decided to withdraw its Ambassador from Paris as a result of the second French atom test in the Sahara on Friday.

But diplomatic relations are not being severed, Mr. Alex Adjei, the Foreign Minister, told a press conference. A Chargé d'Affaires would remain in the Paris Embassy.

The announcement came after M. Louis de Guiringaud, French Ambassador here, had been called to the Foreign Ministry. French Embassy sources would not comment on the Foreign Ministry move.

The Ministry announced after a special Cabinet meeting Friday that the Government had taken "certain decisions" over the test.

"Horror and Dismay"

Mr. Adjei told the press conference he had handed a note to the French Ambassador saying the Government had learnt with "profound horror and dismay that the French Government has exploded a second nuclear device in the Sahara in spite of a worldwide protest against the extension of fissionable material in Africa."

The note went on: "At a time when the world powers which have been in possession of the atom bomb for some time are seeking ways and means of abandoning the use of nuclear weapons as instruments of destruction, it is very much to be regretted that the present French Government has persisted in its determination to flout the conscience of mankind in general and French sentiment in particular by carrying out another atom bomb test on the African continent."

VISITORS' GALLERY

NOBEL SCIENTIST

SIR HANS KREBS

Prof. Sir Hans Kreba, biochemist and Nobel Prize winner now visiting Israel, was last here 34 years ago. He had then been invited here by the late Dr. Chaim Weizmann with the view to his eventually settling down in the country. The idea appealed to Prof. Krebs, but Dr. Weizmann advised him to wait until such time as there were suitable facilities for his work.

Since the war and other circumstances in the meantime, and Prof. Krebs remained in England to develop his research which was to bring him, in 1953, the coveted Nobel Prize.

Looking back to his previous visit, Prof. Krebs recalls that there had already been a beginning on Mount Scopus of medical and natural sciences. Since then, he said, the Hebrew University has made "enormous progress against very great odds," and is now recognized in the world as a centre of academic studies.

"Oxford Like Jerusalem"

Prof. Krebs, who is 60, is a member of the University's Board of Governors and for many years has been associated with the Friends of the Hebrew University. He is now Professor of Biochemistry in Oxford — "which, like Jerusalem, has both its quiet and its hectic corners." He went to England from Germany in 1933 soon after Hitler's advent to power. He had last held a teaching position in Freiburg University, and on arrival in England entered Cambridge University. His reputation as a biochemist was already known to British scientists, who, in general, were most helpful to refugee scholars.

He was awarded the Nobel Prize, jointly with Prof. Fritz Lipmann, another biochemist, for his work in elucidating some aspects of the energy transformation in living cells, in particular the chemical reactions by which food is burnt in the body and yields energy. Prof. Krebs explains this as a matter of understanding how living cells of all sorts work in bacteria and also in plants. There is no immediate practical application, he says. His work on this extended over a period from 1936 to 1947, though today he is still engaged in similar research on cell metabolism. His distinction as a scientist brought him a knighthood in 1958.

His fortnight's itinerary here, apart from sightseeing, includes four lectures at the University. He has a sister in Tel Aviv, who came here in 1936, and has met several scientist colleagues whom he had known back in Germany.

Robbers of Jewish Mass Graves Held

WARSAW (AFP). — The Polish police have arrested 10 persons who were found robbing corpses of gold teeth and ornaments in mass graves located in the Lvov forest, where the Nazis killed 250,000 Jews during World War II, it was reported here on Thursday.

The men were arrested in Sivovo, and were found in possession of gold teeth and various items of jewellery which they had apparently taken from the corpses they had dug up.

THE PROTOCOL of the trade agreement between Israel and Bulgaria, dating from November 1958, has been extended to the end of 1960, without any change in the appended quota list, the spokesman of the Foreign Ministry has announced.

Ex-Ghana Politician Teaching in Leyden

Jerusalem Post Correspondent

AMSTERDAM (By Airmail). — The former Ghanaian opposition leader, Dr. K. A. Busia, has now been appointed a professor in African Sociology and Ethnology at the University of Leyden. The Chair has been established by the African Study Centre at Leyden.

Professor Busia, who was earlier professor at University College, Accra, arrived in Holland last September as a guest professor at the International Institute for Social Studies at The Hague. He had left Ghana as in his view the present regime made it difficult for him to remain there.

Professor Busia is a Protestant and has been active in the World Council of Churches.

LAW REPORT

The Jerusalem Post
April 3, 1960

In the Supreme Court Sitting as Court of Civil Appeals

Before Justices Sussman, Berinson and Witkon.

Yaacov Cohen, Appellant, v. The Watchmen's Association, Respondents (C.A. 451/59).

Interest Payable on Arbitration Award

The Supreme Court dismissed an appeal against a judgment of the Tel Aviv District Court, delivered on March 30, 1959 (in C.C. 45/59).

The appellant, Ya'acov Cohen, worked as a night watchman for the Watchmen's Association. He was paid a comprehensive wage which included payment for Saturdays and holidays. After working from November 15, 1956 till July 31, 1958, he became involved in a dispute with his employers. The dispute was submitted to the arbitration of Mr. D. Katz of the Labour Relations Department of the Ministry of Labour, the arbitration submission containing a clause to the effect that the arbitrator was not bound by any rules of procedure or by the material law of the State.

Mr. Katz held, in his award, that Mr. Cohen had been entitled to payment at an overtime rate of 150 per cent for ninety nights during the period in which he had worked for the respondents. He, however, did not accede to Mr. Cohen's request to apply section 4 of the Wage Protection Law, 1958, to the period between April 1, 1956 when this law came into force, and July 31, 1958, when Mr. Cohen ceased working for the respondents.

This section provides in effect that if a comprehensive wage, which includes overtime and holiday pay, is fixed for a worker to whom the Hours of Work & Rest Law, 1951, is applicable, then this wage shall be regarded as an ordinary wage only (and, hence, an additional payment over and above this wage would have to be made for overtime work and holidays).

Mr. Cohen applied to the Tel Aviv District Court to enforce part of the award and to result that part of the award rejecting the application of section 4 of the Wage Protection Law to the reconsideration of the Arbitrator. He also asked for interest from the date of the award. The District Court gave an order enforcing the whole of the award, refusing to submit the relevant part to the reconsideration of the arbitrator; and rejected the request for interest.

Mr. Cohen appealed to the Supreme Court. Mr. E. Hazari appeared for the appellant and Mr. E. Fuchs for the respondent.

Judgment

Justice Sussman, who delivered the judgment of the Supreme Court, emphasized that there is no appeal to a court against an arbitration award. The arbitrator, he continued, need not give any reasons for his decision, in which case it cannot be challenged at all. But if he elects to give a reasoned award and it appears from his reasonings that he has committed an error of law, then this is a cause for setting the award aside. However, this rule does not apply when the parties to the arbitration submission have agreed that the material laws of the State shall not be binding on the arbitrator. In this case the arbitrator may decide in accordance with his own discretion and not in accordance with the law, the only reservation being that he do not countenance anything which contravenes the provisions of the criminal law or is against public policy.

In the case under consideration, continued Justice Sussman, the appellant had argued that, in ignoring the provisions of section 5 of the Wage Protection Law, the arbitrator had acted contrary to public policy. This section, however, he said, does not invalidate or nullify any agreement to pay a comprehensive wage. It merely enforces a different interpretation of such an agreement than that which was originally intended by the parties. In the case, however, of an agreement, such as the one in the present case, which was made long before the Wage Protection Law was enacted, and in connection with which a dispute had arisen after the work had been completed and after the law had been enacted, there is no reason why the question of whether the interpretation imposed by section 5 is applicable to it or not should not be settled by arbitration.

The arbitrator, he continued, had not ignored the provisions of section 5. But he had advisedly decided not to apply them for the short period from April 1 until July 31, preferring instead to grant the appellant a higher wage (albeit less for that limited period than he would have got if the provisions of section 5 had been applied) than that which he had originally agreed to accept for the whole period of his employment, although there was nothing in the law to prevent his employers from paying him the comprehensive wage agreed upon up to April 1, 1958. The appellant, however, continued Justice Sussman, wished to have his cake and eat it. He wished to benefit from the arbitrator's decision to grant him a higher wage for the period up to April 1, 1958, although there was no legal necessity for him to have done so; and at the same time demanded the benefit of the law as from April 1, 1958 — and public policy most certainly did not require him to be honoured in this. If the appellant had wished the law to be strictly applied, then he should not have agreed to arbitration and should, most certainly not have agreed that the arbitrator be not bound by the material law of the State.

Turning next to the question of interest, Justice Sussman said that the District Court had rejected the appellant's request for interest from the day the arbitration award was given on the grounds that the application had been one for enforcement of an arbitration award as it stands and the award had made no mention of any interest. The District Court had been correct in not giving interest from the day the award was made, he held but the appellant is entitled to interest from the day he applied to the court for an enforcement order: for an application of this nature comes within the meaning of section 112 of the Ottoman Code of Civil Procedure, being, for the purposes of interest, tantamount to a statement of claim. The appellant should, therefore, be granted interest from January 28, 1958.

Appeal dismissed, except with regard to the interest. Costs of IL200 awarded the respondent.

Judgment given on March 18, 1960.

Karasik, Habad Rabbi, Dies at 62

TEL AVIV. — The spiritual leader of the Central Synagogue of the Habad Hassidic movement in Israel, Rabbi Eliezer Karasik, died yesterday morning from a heart attack. He was 62.

The funeral procession will leave for Tiberias at 10 a.m. today from the home of the deceased at 22 Rothschild Boulevard. He is survived by his wife and a number of children.

He came to this country in 1936 from Schedrin in White Russia. (Ittim)

95-Year-Old Woman Drowns in Well

A 95-year-old woman of Jerusalem's Nahlat Ahim quarter drowned on Friday in a well in the courtyard of her home.

One of her neighbours noticed that the well was open and that the old woman's shoes were nearby. The neighbour summoned Magen David Adom and the Fire Brigade and they pulled the woman out. She was taken to Hadassah hospital where it was found that the cause of death was drowning.

The woman lost a daughter a short time ago, and neighbours said she had also been suffering severe eye pains.

New Oil Well North of Heletz Seen Richest Strike to Date

By ZEEV SCHIEL, Jerusalem Post Reporter

TEL AVIV.—Tests at Heletz 25 have confirmed that it is the country's most promising oil strike to date, Mr. Zvi Alexander, of the Lapidot oil firm, told The Jerusalem Post here on Friday.

Sensitive photo-electric equipment recorded an 18-foot oil layer about 1,500 metres down the outer geological crust. This is in contrast to the six to 10-foot layers of other wells in the area.

It is understood that No. 25 is to be linked to the oil pipeline this week. Figures on its potential output should become available in several more days, Mr. Alexander said.

No. 25 gushed oil last Tuesday. It is half a kilometre north of what had been considered the northern limit of the Heletz oilfield.

Raise Yield 20%

It is roughly estimated that No. 25 will boost the total potential of the field by as much as 20 per cent, covering up to 10 per cent of the country's total annual requirements. While this is believed considerably under the maximum potential output, it is the result of a deliberate policy counselled by experts in order to preserve oil reserves and furnish fullest exploitation over a number of years.

Local experts were reported less confounded at the quality of No. 25 than the fact that oil was found there at all. The well was sunk as an experiment to locate the northern limits of the field. Its success is now expected to touch off a series of new drillings, including reappraisals of areas already prospected.

Old Holes Rebored

Unconfirmed earlier reports suggested that some of the drills in adjoining areas were carried out with rigs incapable of penetrating to what is now considered a "promising depth," and that consequently a number of those sites will have to be surveyed again.

It is understood that Lapidot has also ordered a new seismic survey of strata in the four kms. separating Negba from Heletz in order to pinpoint the most promising sites. While the Company spokesman refrained from commenting on the future prospects of Heletz, there are increased chances of additional strikes in the vicinity of No. 25. The well was drilled in a record time of three weeks by an all-Israel crew.

Radio Introduces New News Schedule

Kol Yisrael yesterday announced that the following changes in its daily news broadcasting schedule will take effect today:

The headlines now broadcast at 6.30 will be given at 6.05 a.m. The news in Simple Hebrew will be given at 5.15 p.m. instead of 6.30, in Ladino — 6.30 p.m. instead of 9; in English — at 9 p.m. instead of 10; and in Polish — 9.15 p.m. instead of 6.45.

This afternoon, Kol Yisrael will inaugurate its commercial broadcasting. The first two hours of sponsored programmes will be heard between 5 and 7.

Haim Salomon

Tikva, he studied at the Ets Haim Yeshiva, and went on to study Hebrew literature and languages.

Upon completing his studies, he helped to found the pharmaceutical firms of Solomon, Levin and Elstein, and in later years — of their subsidiaries, Assia Aelion, and Paos, of whose Boards he was Chairman, and became active in civic affairs. An Orthodox Jew, he organized the action which, on the seventh day of Passover in 1930, gathered thousands of signatures on a petition to release the late Ze'ev Jabotinsky and his colleagues from jail, where they had been detained by the British authorities for organizing Jewish armed resistance against Arab rioters in the Old City.

In 1934 the District Commissioner of Jerusalem, Sir Ronald Storrs, appointed him to the Municipal Council. In the summer of 1939, shortly after he became a member of the Va'ad Leumi, he and Mr. Itzhak Ben-Zvi were called upon to mobilise the Palestine Jewish community in the face of the Arab outbreaks, since the rest of the leadership was then attending the Zionist Congress in Zurich. In 1930, he, Pinhas Ruttenberg and David Remez were called upon to go to London to express Palestine Jewry's opposition to the MacDonald White Paper.

In June, 1936 he was made an Officer of the Order of the British Empire.

He continued to be active in Jerusalem's civic affairs after the State was established.

Polish Visitor Finds 'Desire for Peace' Here

TEL AVIV. — An overwhelming desire for peace is "the main thing we have encountered everywhere we have been in Israel."

This was said on Friday by Mr. Adam Ostrowsky, former Polish Ambassador to Sweden and head of the delegation of Polish publishers, who came here to attend the opening of the Polish Book Fair in Tel Aviv. Mr. Ostrowsky, who is also Chairman of the Polish Publishers Association and Director of the State Publishing House, was speaking at a reception given in honour of the delegation by the Israel-Poland Friendship League.

Among those present at the reception were the Polish Minister, Mr. Antoni Bida; Mr. Moshe Sharett, M.K.; the Polish Cultural Attaché, Mr. Michal Paul; the Commercial Attaché, Mr. Albert Glycer; the Managing Director of the Polish Scientific Publishing House, Mr. Adam Bromberg; Mr. Boleslaw Tromsbals; the Director of the East European Division of the Ministry for Foreign Affairs, Mr. Yehuda Gideon, and members of the Executive of the Israel-Poland Friendship League. (Ittim)

A NEW CARD index file for listing information on all families receiving support from District Welfare Offices was inaugurated on Friday, the Welfare Ministry spokesman stated on Friday.

12,000 Old and Young Start Annual March Tomorrow

TEL AVIV. — More than 12,000 marchers will set out on the annual group march (Tza'ada) at 4 o'clock tomorrow morning from camps at Hulda and Eshtaol at the Judean foothills. Among the hikers, who will cover 160 kms. in four days, will be 34 men and women from Holland and a Swiss policeman.

All marchers must register by 3 p.m. today at the camps. The first soldier contingents went into camp on Friday. The biggest group comprises 2,000 Gadna youth and school pupils. The 4,500 Army personnel include 875 girl soldiers and three colonels. Of the 1,800 civilians, 400 are women. Three hundred of the marchers will be over 45-years-old, with the oldest being Mr. Yosef Doron of Tel Aviv, aged 93.

Parade Through Capital

The march, organized by the Training Command of the Israel Defence Forces, will end in Jerusalem on Tuesday for the youth and oldtimers who will have covered 60 kms. in two days, and on Thursday for those marching four days.

All marchers will parade through the streets of the capital on the final day.

Unlike the three previous annual marches, walkers will this year stride through the countryside on different routes, and return daily to their tents in the Hrida woods before the climb to Jerusalem on the final day. Each day's walk must last from seven to 10 hours. Cups will be awarded to the smartest though not the speediest marchers. Refreshments will be available on the way. Sgan-Aluf A. Sharon, O.C. of the march, told reporters.

The guests from Holland will be escorted by a Dutch-speaking officer. They, too, will live at the Hulda encampment. Since their arrival here on Wednesday, they have been touring the country as guests of the Government Tourist Corporation and the Dan Bus Cooperative.

Eban Mooted To Succeed Aranne

Jerusalem Post Staff

TEL AVIV.—Mapai circles indicated on Saturday night that no further pressure would be brought on Mr. Zalman Aranne to remain as Minister of Education. The most likely successor at this writing appears to be the Minister without Portfolio, Mr. Abba Eban.

A settlement of the dispute between the Ministry of Education and the secondary school teachers — over which Mr. Aranne has resigned — seemed no closer to a settlement last night than at any time in the past year-and-a-half. Mr. Levi Eshkol, the chairman of the Ministerial committee which is charged with finding some way out of the impasse, tends to support the Histadrut stand against recognition of the dissident High School Teachers Association.

On the other hand, neither the Histadrut nor the Association have budged from their previous stands in their appearances before the committee. Association representatives even announced that they planned to intensify their non-cooperation campaign.

On Friday, Mr. Yitzhak Shapira, the widely-respected Principal of the Reali School in Haifa, was received by Prime Minister Ben-Gurion for a discussion of the situation.

Agricultural Research Merger a Fact

Jerusalem Post Reporter

REHOVOT. — The operative stage has been reached in the merger of the Hebrew University's Agricultural Faculty and the Agriculture Ministry's Research Station, Prof. H. Halperin, of the Faculty, said at a festive rally held here Friday night to mark the 35th anniversary of the founding of the Hebrew University.

The President of the Weizmann Institute, Mr. Abba Eban, said that science and knowledge would increase our international standing, especially in Asian and African lands.

$100,000 Given For Beersheba School

BEERSHEBA.—Mayor David Touviahu said here on Friday evening that a $100,000 donation had been received to build a junior technical college in Beersheba. He said the donor wants to remain anonymous.

Addressing the founding meeting of a local chapter of the Friends of the Hebrew University, Mr. Touviahu said the college would be built in the vicinity of the Arid Zone Research Station. He hoped classes would begin in September.

Revamped Greek XI Meets Israel in Athens Today

Jerusalem Post Staff

TEL AVIV.—Two Olympic preliminary soccer match at the "Alexandra" stadium in Athens today is a vital one for Israel but less important for Greece.

Israel, by scoring a win, would go to the top of the group, leaving the return match against Yugoslavia in Belgrade next Sunday to decide which country enters the Olympic games finals pool in Rome.

So far, Yugoslavia has three points in two games and a 6:2 goal average; Israel also has three points but a 4:3 average, and Greece has no points and a 1:6 average.

All 30,000 seats for today's games have been sold out.

Though Israel scored a 2:1 win over Greece in Ramat Gan last month, the team showed several glaring weaknesses, and trainer G. Mandy has taken appropriate measures. The side taking the field at Athens today has a brand-new defence, with emphasis on speed rather than experience. Natanya Maccabi's Menashko and Jerusalem Hapoel's Benvenisti are to make their international debuts as backs, replacing veterans Nathanya and Mordechovits.

The other notably change is the dropping of Yosef Goldstein from the forward line. Goldstein, a "fixture" in the Hapoel for many years, has slowed down lately, and as Mandy is determined that the Israel XI will force the pace, he is bringing in Nahari on the right-wing.

Strong in Mid-Field

Israel is strongest in mid-field, with the half-back line of Amar, Lefkovitz and Tisch.

The Greeks have made five changes from the lineup that played in Ramat Gan, and the team that plays Israel today looks considerably stronger than that of a month ago. The return of Nesteridis to spearhead the Greek attack will prove particularly dangerous.

The Greeks will this time have the advantage of 30,000 fans cheering them on, making them slight favourites to win. But with so much at stake for Israel, and Mandy on the touchline ready with his expert advice on tactics, an Israel victory would be no surprise.

Radio Athens has turned down a Kol Yisrael request for facilities, and there will be no play-by-play account of the game broadcast locally.

U.K. Beats Holland, In Olympic Soccer

THE HAGUE (Reuter). — Britain beat Holland, 5-1, in an Olympic Games qualifying soccer match yesterday after leading 1-0 at halftime.

The victory put Britain in the last 16 teams to contest the final stages in Rome this summer.

Procrastination Costs Kibbutz Dollars

NAHARIYA. — A cheque for almost $4,000 was confiscated by the Economic Police from Kibbutz Lohamei Hagetaot on Friday, a month after it had been received as a gift from the U.S. The kibbutz had failed to exchange it for local currency, the police charge.

The Kibbutz Secretary said that the $3,968 was sent as a contribution towards the building of a children's home. It was not cashed because of differences of opinion among the kibbutz members whether to accept the donation or not.

The confiscation of the cheque was preceded by the arrest of the cashier of the kibbutz allegedly in Tel Aviv's Rehov Lilienblum, the notorious free-money market.

Mental Home For Wife Murderer

TEL AVIV. — David Maltz, who murdered his wife last October, will be placed in a mental institution, the District Court decided here on Friday, on the basis of medical testimony.

Maltz said, he killed his wife in their flat in the Neveh Amal housing project in Herzliya because she wanted to have him committed to a mental institution. (Ittim) our view. It was the same with Algeria. What that was concerns only the President and me."

Asked for his reaction to the French A-bomb, Mr. Khrushchev said: "We commented on the first French explosion and we stand by these positions. I regret these further explosions, and especially that we have not come to an agreement on the banning of tests. If such an agreement had been signed it would have been more difficult for France not to abide by it..." He added: "I hope and deeply believe that an agreement will be reached and that France will also join this agreement."

Always Optimistic

Referring to the summit meeting, he said: "I am, of course, an optimistic man, and have always looked that way at a summit meeting. This is stronger now because right thinking people understand we must do everything to improve the situation and ease tension; to work for peace. I know the participants of the conference and know they will also have the same approach."

Asked, concerning the Soviet proposal that West Berlin should be a Free City, whether the Soviet Union was prepared to guarantee that the city would be free to develop without interference by Communist states, Mr. Khrushchev replied: "That is how I understand the question. We are ready at any level to take part in these guarantees and, that they should to a certain extent be brought into effect under United Nations auspices."

League 'A' Leaders All Return Wins

Jerusalem Post Reporter

TEL AVIV. — All four leading clubs in League "A" scored victories on Saturday, leaving the fight to gain promotion to the National League unchanged.

However, the Football Association has invalidated the results of Tel Aviv Shimshon's recent games, because of that team's previous suspension, thus changing the relative positions of the leading contenders.

Tel Aviv Hakoah, which scored a 1:0 win over Beersheba Hapoel, lead by two points over Tiberias Hapoel. A point behind are Tel Aviv Shimshon and Jerusalem Betar.

Shimshon celebrated its return to League soccer with a 2:0 win over Ramle Hapoel, and with two games in hand over the League leaders appear now to be the most serious challengers to Tel Aviv Hakoah.

Haifa Mac. Beats T.A. Hap.

In the 7th round of the F. A. Shield, Haifa Maccabi returned the most creditable result of the day, beating Tel Aviv Hapoel 1:0 in Jaffa. The goal was scored by their young outside-right Fishman in the 10th minute. Both sides fielded mainly young players.

Yoseph Goldstein, the veteran international inside-forward, cracked in four goals for Tel Aviv Maccabi in that team's 5:1 win over Natanya Maccabi. The Ratzabi brothers of Petah Tikva Hapoel scored all four goals for their club in the 4:2 win over Bnei Yehuda. Outside-left Avshalom scored three times and Zacharia once.

FOOTBALL ASSOCIATION SHIELD RESULTS:

Petah Tikva Hapoel 4, Bnei Yehuda 2; Jerusalem Hapoel 4, Petach Tikva Maccabi 2; Tel Aviv Maccabi 5, Natanya Hapoel 1; Ramat Gan Hapoel 2, Jaffa Maccabi 2; Tel Aviv Hapoel 6, Haifa Maccabi 1; Haifa Hapoel 3, Tel Aviv Betar 1.

LEAGUE "A"

Tiberias Hapoel 1, Hadera Maccabi 0; Beersheba Hapoel 0, Tel Aviv Hakoah 1; Jerusalem Betar 4, Natanya Hapoel 1; Rehovot Hapoel 6, Rehovot Maccabi 0; Hadera Hapoel 2, Kiryat Haim Hapoel 2; Tel Aviv Shimshon 2, Ramle Hapoel 0; Nahariya Yehuda Hapoel 1, Kfar Saba Hapoel 2.

Meir Urges Bigger S. American Aliya

Jerusalem Post Reporter

TEL AVIV. — Foreign Minister Golda Meir on Friday called for stepped up activity to encourage the immigration of South American Jewry.

Speaking at a rural newspaper at Beit Eshpiney organized by the World Jewish Congress and the Journalists Association, Mrs. Meir said Israel had responsibility for the Jewish youth of Latin America. She called for transfers from this country to go out to South America.

"I do not think Jews should come to this country because of fear of what might happen to them, but Israel is nevertheless the only place where Jews may live completely at peace," Mrs. Meir said. She praised the pioneering efforts of immigrants from Latin America.

Mr. Y. Harkavy, Chairman of the South American Immigrants Association and Ambassador-Designate to Uruguay, said that one-third of all physicians working in southern and Negev settlements came from Latin America.

Dr. A. Rojansky, Uruguay's Consul-General in Israel, said the traditional friendship between Israel and Uruguay would continue despite changes of regime in the Latin American republic.

No Decision on Isotope Centre for Mid-East

Jerusalem Post Reporter

The International Atomic Energy Agency has postponed until June a decision on the site of the projected regional isotope centre for the Middle East, it is learned in Jerusalem. At present, the choice lies between Cairo and Istanbul.

The Board of Directors of the Agency decided at its meeting in Vienna on Friday to put off a decision until its next quarterly session in June.

A three-member delegation from the Agency is due to visit Israel this week in the course of a tour of Mediterranean and African countries affiliated to the Agency, to survey nuclear research activities.

Drought-Hit Beduin Ask Tiberias Leaves

BEERSHEBA. — Scores of Beduin who have received compensation for drought damage applied last week to the District Health Offices for permits to travel to Tiberias for recuperation. Many Beduin travel annually to Tiberias to take the baths and do shopping.

Belgian Congolese To Study Youth Activity

LYDDA AIRPORT. — The Commissioner General of Social Action for Youth in Leopoldville, M. Alphonse Sita, and the Commissioner of Youth Activity in the Belgian Congo, Viscount Julien d'Avignon, arrived Thursday night for a two-week study tour as guests of the Government.

The guests said they intend to study youth and settlement activity in Israel, to guide them in dealing with related problems confronting the Belgian Congo as it moves towards independence.

INDUSTRY FINANCE AND COMMERCE

Miners from U.K. To Work at Timna

ELIAT. — Fifteen Bantam miners, with a Scottish engineer at their head, arrived in Eilat on Saturday to work in the Timna copper field.

The men were chosen from 400 candidates who answered advertisements in the British press. Under their contract, they are to remain at least a year if they agree to stay beyond their three-month trial period. At the end of the year, they will be given the option of bringing their families to Eilat.

According to the Ministry of Development spokesman, the Timna copper works exported $2.3m. worth of copper in the fiscal year which ended last Thursday, the first year of normal production.

The Timna Works hope to increase output by 15 per cent this year to a total of 6,500 tons of metallic copper.

Expansion of Dead Sea Works Discussed

The Ministers of Finance, and of Development, Messrs. Levi Eshkol and Mordechai Bentov, and the Governor of the Bank of Israel, Mr. David Horowitz, met on Thursday with the delegation of the World Bank to discuss plans to expand the Dead Sea Potash Works.

Senior Government officials also attended the conference.

New Self-Service Shop in Jerusalem Today

Jerusalem Post Reporter

The third self-service tsorchanitza in the capital will be opened in the Rehavia quarter today, the Jerusalem Consumers Cooperative has announced. It is in the former Rehavia Cafe, Rehov Ramban.

It is the 10th tsorchanitza of the Cooperative in Jerusalem. This number will shortly be increased by three others to be built in Beit Hakerem, Katamon, and the centre of the city.

Six self-service stores will be opened in various parts of the country this month, Mr. E. Lifshitz, a member of the Consumers Cooperative Union, announced in Ramle on Friday, officially opening a supermarket there. It is Ramle's second such store.

Zim's New Netanya Arrives in Haifa

HAIFA. — Jets of water and screaming sirens greeted Zim's newest freighter, the 5,800-ton fruit carrier Netanya, on her arrival here on Friday with a load of general cargo from Copenhagen and Hamburg. She is the 28th vessel built in Germany from Zim funds.

At a reception the Natanya Mayor, Mr. David Fucha, fixed the town's emblem on the ship. The Zim Director, Mr. Zvi Yehieli, said the ship's holds had been experimentally equipped with a humidity regulator. It was hoped that by keeping the air dry in the holds, citrus fruit would arrive in still better condition than hitherto.

The master is Captain Ezra Yoran, and the ship has a 34-man crew.

S.S. A. GRANTE SOLD FOR SCRAP

HAIFA. — The 5,000-ton Norwegian freighter A. Grante, which was sold for scrap in Italy recently, left Haifa Port on Friday for Genoa. The vessel, which was built in 1943, had been in service for 17 years.

Mail up in port for more than a year, also will be moved to Italy shortly.

PARIS LETTER

By Israel Shenker

How Khrushchev Reconciled Opposites

IT was the last evening of Mr. Khrushchev's visit to Paris; but the Parisian public's curiosity remained at intense as on the morning of his arrival. The square in front of the Opera had been cleared of ordinary mortals, but as U.S. sidewalks thousands waited patiently for hours, behind a double barrier of policemen and an iron fence, hoping to catch a glimpse of the august guest. At last he arrived and began climbing at the side of General de Gaulle, the broad steps leading to the entry into the Opera, illuminated and richly decorated with French and Soviet flags. The crowd, sprinkled with groups of Communists and sympathizers, began cheering wildly, but Khrushchev continued to climb the steps with his back to the demonstrating public, as if the cheers did not reach his ears.

Only when de Gaulle himself called his attention to the crowd did Khrushchev turn towards it and, together with the President, acknowledge the applause. Two or three seconds later he continued on his way into the building, where representatives of Paris high society, le tout Paris, waited in evening dress, ready to honour the representative of the Soviet State, himself wearing an ordinary dark suit with a bright tie.

On this occasion the guest seemed to wear correctly — albeit somewhat ill at ease — the starched collar of bourgeois etiquette imposed upon him by his hosts. But it would be a mistake to draw from this particular instance the general conclusion that the French Government pulled off the tour de force of receiving the Soviet Prime Minister without at the same time having to honour the First Secretary of the Russian Communist Party. The task of according a dignified reception to the foreign statesman without permitting him to engage in Communist propaganding seemed difficult before the visit — and proved impossible during the ten days it lasted.

"Stage Fright"

Even before Khrushchev admitted as much in an interview, it was evident that on the day of his arrival he felt sick. This indisposition may well have been brought on by certain apprehensions concerning his ability to make a success of his visit both with President de Gaulle and with Maurice Thorez, rather than by the after-effects of his recent bout of inflenzum. Knowing that his official hosts wished the Prime Minister of the USSR — better still, of Russia — to leave the controversial figure of the First Secretary behind in the remote background, he was hard put to meet the diametrically opposed wishes of the French Communist leadership. His task was to reconcile opposites without his hurting the protocol.

No one can deny that he succeeded in this task, so much so that he drew from M. Guy Mollet the remark: "Khrushchev is remarkably intelligent and the most extraordinary actor I have ever met. But he is also a man who wants to be loved and seeks affection. And when a leader wants love, the best way for him to gain it is to ensure for his country a long period of peace."

Khrushchev limited himself to the role of a visiting foreign statesman, according to the desire of those who had invited him, upon his arrival at Orly. But the Grand opera of the First Secretary emerged five hours later, when he received the leaders of the France-USSR Friendship Association and the Peace Movement. And with every day that passed Khrushchev became more relaxed and confident, the reserved statesman disappearing behind the confident politician and Communist leader, visiting the only country, with the exception of Italy, where millions of voters freely give their votes to the Communist cause.

Communist Propaganda

Mr. Khrushchev turned into an open Communist propagandist when on the second day of his visit he called at the City Hall (Hotel de Ville). In answer to an address by the Mayor, Dr. Devraigne, who, incidentally, belongs to the extreme right, and who openly sympathized with the recent Algerian colon revolt, Khrushchev praised Communist achievements. His speech, broadcast through loudspeakers, was heard by a crowd of tens of thousands gathered outside. Upon leaving the Town Hall, the Soviet Prime Minister moved as if to approach the crowd, then changed his mind.

On the third day, Khrushchev and the leaders of French Communism had their family gathering in the three-room flat in which Louis had lived half a century ago. Here a blue bouquet on the lips of Thorez and Duclos symbolized Khrushchev's warm affection for French Communism and identification with its aims. That day for the first time Khrushchev broke through the bodyguards surrounding him and exchanged handshakes with workers. Next day — Sunday morning — he took the first liberty with the established programme and, disregarding the warning of those in charge of his security, at 7.30 left the villa at Pau, in which he had passed the night, and went for a walk of half an hour, distributing little sputniks among children he met on his way.

It was the "publicity tour" throughout France, and not the political talks in Paris, which caused resentment in some French political quarters, including the Socialist Party. The leitmotif of Khrushchev's declarations about the danger of resurgent German militarism will continue to reverberate when he has returned to Moscow, and its echo may strengthen when, in the future, difficulties arise between Paris and Bonn. Khrushchev wished to remind France of Russia's willingness to renew its alliance with Paris. Even if he fails to get tangible results he clearly hopes that his visit will bear fruit later on — perhaps when France, deprived of President de Gaulle's leadership, will strike out on new paths.

FRIDAY'S PRESS

Zealot Threat to Jerusalem

Hatzofe (National Religious) finds that the non-religious public is slowly coming round to appreciate and sympathise with the attitude of the religious Jews on matters of religious importance and therefore sees prospects of quietly settling the dispute over the projected Sculpture Garden. But there has been a split in Agudat Yisrael ranks, part of which is siding with the Natorei Karta, promising us that "things will be hot in Jerusalem." There are issues which call for extreme measures, but the Sculpture Garden is not one of them.

Discussing the extension of the life of the Religious Councils for another year, Al Hamishmar (Mapam) claims that they intervene in matters outside their jurisdiction and therefore should be subject to the same public control and criticism as all public bodies.

Haboker (General Zionist) believes that the proposal of Mr. Yitzhak Ben-Aharon, the Minister of Transport, to establish a Ministry of Economics and leave fiscal administration to the Ministry of Finance would, under present conditions, only increase duplication. It would be well, however, if we began to think about a more rational organization of the Government's work.

Omer (Histadrut) holds up Latin-American Jewry as an example for the whole free Jewish world in that it has stepped into the breach left in the Ashefe movement on the extinction of the European centres. What is unique about this trend is that it sprang up in response to a purely idealistic urge, for the Jews of Latin America have not been subjected to pressure of any kind. The lesson that we and the Zionist Movement should learn from this is that there is still idealism in our generation and that halutziut still lives.

Davar (Histadrut) stresses the same point and adds that the Jews of Latin America are playing an important part in our life and development, both in town and country, in culture and in industry. It must be noted that those who have come here see themselves as pioneers coming in the van of the main body.

Davar also writes that in the 25 years of its existence, the Hebrew University has marched hand in hand with the Yishuv, sharing its joys as well as its trials and sorrows. It has done much to stimulate and help the creative endeavours of the Jews in this country and has always been mindful of the needs of absorption and integration, accommodating students from different lands and climes, cultural and intellectual backgrounds.

Lamerhav (Ahdut Ha'avoda) also offers its congratulations to the University, adding the hope that it will continue to deepen its roots in the nation and serve as a clearing house of knowledge and know-how for the practical ends of continued development. Both papers hope also that the University will regain its old home on Mount Scopus.

The dams of decency, morality, ethics and national self-respect are irretrievably breached, moans Herut, and it is likely as not that the rumour, leaked for the time being as a trial balloon, that Mr. Ben-Gurion is about to visit Germany, will soon be confirmed.

POSTAL FEES

Editor, The Jerusalem Post

Sir, — The renewed increase of telephone, telegram and postage fees, and especially the arguments for it, as reported in your issue of March 14, are disgraceful.

The official case is that the increased fees are required to finance an ambitious programme of enlarging the telephone service, i.e. installation of new lines for new subscribers.

First of all, the telephone service is the most profitable branch of the Ministry of Posts. This the Authorities have admitted. Why then does the general public, which will not profit, or only slightly so, from the new extension plans, have to bear the burden? We already have paid and are paying over and over for the existing service. Why punish the very big number of people who do not intend to install any telephones at all?

Yours, etc.

Post Office Replies

The increase in postage fees is not intended to help the telephone services. The cost of transporting a letter to its destination is much more than the value of the stamp attached to it. Even with the proposed higher postage fees, the deficit in this service will not decrease but it will at least not grow, as the increased income will cover the rise which has taken place in labour, transport, etc., costs.

It is true that the increased telephone rates are intended to allow the quicker expansion of the telephone network, and this is undoubtedly justified in view of the great needs of those who still cannot obtain telephones because the network is not sufficiently large.

MARGINAL COMMENT

Arabs Awaken to Realities

By I. Bar-Moshe

FEW people in Israel would question the wisdom, the timeliness, or the profitableness of Mr. Ben-Gurion's visit to the U.S.A. and the United Kingdom. One of the little-noticed, but certainly not unimportant results of this prominent tour has been its effect on our Arab neighbours. Nasser set the tune for the U.A.R. press and radio when he dubbed the Israel Premier, "the greatest war criminal in this country." The announcement of Mr. Ben-Gurion's trip came as a shock to Egyptian press and radio commentators who had been reporting imaginery emergency meetings of the Israel Cabinet almost daily, and depicting this country as trembling with fear. Followed a flurry of nervous speculation. "Al Gumhouria" declared on March 8: "Ben-Gurion is flying to the countries of the Tripartite Declaration at a time when Hussein and Kassem are threatening us." Then, on March 13, "Sawt el Arab" became more vehement and venomous: "Kassem, Hussein and Majali are moving in the same direction as Mrs. Meir, General Dayan and Ben-Gurion... Let them not feel themselves. The Arab people will strike at all of them in its holy march on Tel Aviv. De Gaulle, Macmillan and the American Zionists will then rue it as well."

WHEN the visit was over and reports of its success spread, the Egyptian press sobered a little. On March 20 "Al Gumhouria" stated: "If Ben-Gurion's purpose was to bring Middle East affairs before the Summit Conference, he must understand that no settlement of Middle East problems can be forced on the Arabs. The Arabs will accept settlements through the U.N. alone."

★

THE Iraqi press and radio by and large refrained from comment on Ben-Gurion's visit. Baghdad radio simply went on plugging away at the theme that Nasser was siding with Israel against Iraq. Jordan, which came under fire from Cairo during Nasser's Syrian visit, took a different attitude. On March 18, "A-Diffa" wrote: "We do not believe that Ben-Gurion went to the U.S.A. to ask for American guarantees against the U.A.R. and its Soviet arms. He had more far-reaching objectives than this, and he has been successful." "Hawi el A'lem," a Jordanian weekly, wrote on March 24, in a signed article: "When Kassem and Nasser quarrel, Ben-Gurion, who is past 70, makes an arduous and tiring journey to the U.S.A., Great Britain and France, in an attempt to obtain more assistance for his country." The Jordanian writer bitterly went on: "I hate Ben-Gurion and I wish him ill, but in spite of this, I hope from the bottom of my heart that God may grant the Arab people such leaders, ministers and statesmen who will struggle as manfully for Arab nationalism, correctly estimate political situations, exercise the same masterful knowledge of international affairs, and work for the welfare of their countries in the same way as Ben-Gurion is doing for his people in Israel." Relentlessly, the Jordanian writer continued: "God is my witness, I have a feeling of deep shame when I compare the mentality of Ben-Gurion with that of some of our Arab leaders, whose heads are stuffed with trash, frivolities and rubbish, causing the Arab people to become a laughing stock among all nations."

THESE Jordanian reactions are the outcome of new trends in Arab thought concerning Israel, rather than a result of the current Cairo-Amman conflict. It is not surprising that relatively balanced and accurate appreciations of the Ben-Gurion visit were forthcoming from Lebanon, where the press has more freedom than in other Arab countries. Thus "Al-Hayat," the Beirut daily wrote on March 25: "Ben-Gurion impressed what he described as the 'great minds of the West.' The mere mention of 'great minds' reminds us of what we Arabs need most: great minds." Next day, this very influential and generally pro-Nasser newspaper summed up Ben-Gurion's visit thus: "Arab governments should reconsider their policy in the light of Ben-Gurion's visit. Our governments have—erroneously—thought that Ben-Gurion had gone to ask for aid and guarantees from the Western Powers. But there is abundant evidence that he went for something far more important. The talks he conducted are on a par with the forthcoming Summit Conference. The support he found with the Americans and the British is also Summit support. Ben-Gurion has entered through the highest and the most beneficial gates. If he has registered success there, then all the arms we have piled up will soon rust. An armed conflict is not thinkable in this period. The need is now for the highest kind of personal diplomacy. If we let the opportunity pass, Israel will register another practical victory over us, while we shall be busy as usual with our customary outpouring of words."

MUSICAL DIARY

Italian Newcomer

Vocal Recital given by Natania Devrat, soprano, Vasco Campagnano, tenor; at the piano: Aris Emmanuel (presented by the Rubin Academy of Music and the Jerusalem Municipality at the Y.M.C.A. Auditorium, March 20). Arias by Stradella, Mozart, Bizet, Verdi, Puccini, Leoncavallo.

APART from the Mozart and Stradella Arias, every item on this programme belonged to the sphere of "music for the millions." We were treated to no less than three arias from "Aida," two from "Turandot" and all the other proven favourites of pops concerts from "Tosca" and "Pagliacci" through to "Madame Butterfly," added as an encore.

A newcomer from Italy, Vasco Compagnano performed with experienced theatrical gusto and all the top notes drawn out in the right places. His is a very strong voice which can easily fill any venue for Italian opera.

Natania Devrat provided two Stradella and Mozart arias to offset the accent on popular fare. Her singing was on a high level, though I suggest that generally this sort of programme is not her real province. After her multi-lingual recital of folk-songs during United Nations Week and her tremendously impressive performance of Mussorgsky's "Songs from the Nursery," one wonders why Natania Devrat does not concentrate on the fascinating reservoir of songs and folktunes, where she has no peer amongst our offfamily interpreters.

Guest Conductor

The Kol Yisrael Orchestra, Aviva Elsborn, conductor; David Bar-Ilan, piano (Y.M.C.A. Auditorium, Jerusalem, March 29). F. Ben-Haim: Concerto for Strings; Mozart: Piano Concerto in G., K. 453; Haydn: Symphony No. 88 in G.; Beshasz: Tragic Overture.

AVIVA Elsborn, the guest conductor, confirmed the impression she made at her first appearance just a year ago — that of a good craftsman in thorough command of all technical requirements, but lacking the verve and fire that make music an exciting experience.

David Bar-Ilan gave an overly poetic reading of Mozart's lovely G-major concerto, employing sensitive touch and an easy technique, though frequently at loggerheads about tempi with the conductor, who seemed unable to follow his predilection for lively movement.

The most successful item of the evening was the Haydn Symphony, where the orchestra produced enough spirit and tone quantity and quality to give this work a satisfactory reading.

American Music

"The Composers' Forum" sponsored by the League of Composers and the Mills Artist Club (Tel Aviv, March 30).

MR. Paul Creston, the American composer, who has been on a short visit to this country, lectured last Friday at the Mills Artist Club.

Mr. Creston (b. 1906) is one of the most performed composers in the U.S. He is the recipient of many important prizes and holder of several academic titles.

"America is not only a country of sports and dollars, as many people think," Mr. Creston began his lecture, "but also a first-rate musical centre of immense proportions."

American music has developed steadily since the 19th century, but the great leap forward came relatively late. By 1920 A. Copland started composing, and this was, according to Mr. Creston, the great turning-point in American music. "Copland put America on the musical map," said Mr. Creston. Now there are 250 active, established composers in the U.S.A., not counting young newcomers.

After the lecture, three of Mr. Creston's own works were played from tape: "Toccata for Orchestra" which is a study in rhythm, using 65 different rhythmic patterns in the 3/4 metre, a prelude and dance for orchestra, and his Fourth Symphony based on themes by Scarlatti.

Mr. Avidom greeted the guest on behalf of the League of Composers and Dr. Gradenwitz on behalf of the Section of Contemporary Music.
